PROGRAM BOOK

Message from the President

Dear Delegates Dingoes,

On behalf of the CLANT committee, I am delighted to welcome you to the 19th Biennial Criminal Law Conference. This year's conference marks our long-awaited return to the majestic Hyatt Regency Bali, a place that holds happy memories for many of us. After a five-year hiatus, it is wonderful to be back.

This year's theme is: Tough. Soft. Smart on Crime. The Territory is in desperate need for new approaches to the difficult issues within our criminal justice system. The over-representation of indigenous people, shocking rates of recidivism, and the scourge of domestic and family violence are not new problems. Clearly, what we have been doing is just not working.

This year's conference program is jam-packed and exciting. Let's use the opportunity of this conference to reflect, discuss and relax. I hope our conference will provide a valuable forum to discuss a smarter approach to crime for the benefit of the community: defendants, victims and practitioners alike.

Whether you are a young pup or a wise old dingo, I hope you have a stimulating and enjoyable week here in beautiful Sanur!

END OF CONFERENCE!

Keynote Speaker

Justice Lincoln CROWLEY
Supreme Court of Queensland

I will strive to do justice in every case. In the end, justice is what it's all about: always was, always will be.

The Honourable Justice Lincoln Crowley holds a Bachelor of Laws from James Cook University, a Graduate Diploma in Legal Practice from the Queensland University of Technology and a Bachelor of Arts, majoring in Political Science, from the University of New England. He was admitted to practice in Queensland in 1997. His first role after admission was as a solicitor with the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Legal Service, initially in Townsville and then later in Brisbane. After several years he moved to New South Wales, where worked as a senior solicitor within the New South Wales Crown Solicitor's Office, and later was called to the Sydney private bar. There he practised in both civil and criminal fields before returning to the public sector as In-House Counsel with the Sydney Office of the Commonwealth Director of Public Prosecutions.

After several years in that role his Honour returned to Queensland to take up a position as a Principal Crown Prosecutor for the Queensland Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions, before finally settling into practise at the Queensland private bar, where he specialised in crime and all areas of public law for many years. In 2018, his Honour became the first Indigenous person appointed as Queen's Counsel in and for the State of Queensland.

On 13 June 2022, Justice Crowley was sworn in as a judge of the Supreme Court of Queensland, becoming the first Indigenous judge appointed to a superior court in Australia

Meet The Speakers In order of appearance

Chief Justice Michael GRANT AOSupreme Court of the Northern Territory

The Hon. Chief Justice Michael Grant AO was appointed Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the Northern Territory in July 2016. He held office as Solicitor-General between September 2007 and July 2016, and frequently appeared in the High Court of Australia in that capacity. Prior to his appointment as Solicitor-General, Chief Justice Grant practised at the private bar and took silk in 2006. His practice areas included Commercial, Common Law, Equity and Public and Administrative Law. Before joining the private bar he practised a solicitor-advocate with the Solicitor for the Northern Territory. Chief Justice Grant also lectured in Torts and Taxation Law while working as a solicitor. Chief Justice Grant's other appointments have included Statutory Supervisor of the Legal Profession, President of the Health Professional Review Tribunal, and member of the Legal Practitioners Admission Board.

Justice Natalie ADAMSSupreme Court of New South Wales

The Hon. Justice Natalie Adams graduated from the University of Sydney with a Bachelor of Economics and Bachelor of Laws (Honours II) in 1988. She was admitted to practice in 1989 and worked for a year as a commercial lawyer before moving to the NSW DPP in 1991. She completed a Master of Laws at the University of New South Wales, studying part-time. In early 1996, Justice Adams left the ODPP to work at the Legal Aid Commission, and in late 1997 she joined the Criminal Law Team at the Crown Solicitor's Office. She was called to the bar in early 2001. She was appointed a Crown Prosecutor in 2002 where she served for nearly ten years. Appearing on behalf of the families of Aboriginal people who have tragically lost their lives during police operations, she has developed a keen interest in the relationships between and accountability of government agencies and their interaction with the criminal jurisdiction system.

Ragni MATHUR SC
Barrister
Maurice Byers Chambers

I spent my first eight years as a solicitor advocate in criminal law for the Aboriginal Legal Service (ALS), primarily based in Redfern Sydney. Between 2000-2002 I worked in the NT, briefly at the ALS in Darwin (NALAAS), followed by Alice Springs (CAALAS). I most relished the time I spent away on 'bush court' in the indigenous communities of the Tiwi Islands, Kintore, Yuendumu, Papunya and Mutitjulu. My time spent working with Aboriginal communities challenged my thinking about the meaning of 'justice' and a 'fair process'. Most of my clients had English as their third or fourth language. I questioned the way our legal rules and sentencing principles were being translated to and understood by clients. In my 18 years at the Bar I have specialised in criminal defence work, medical disciplinary proceedings and negligence, and inquests and inquiries. My training as an ALS lawyer engrained a strong belief for a just and fair system for any accused who appears before the court and who is at their most vulnerable in those circumstances.

The experience never leaves you and becomes a defining point of who and why you are an advocate

Richard EDNEY *Barrister*Niagara Lane Chambers

Rex was admitted to practise as a barrister & solicitor in Victoria in 1968. He practised as a barrister from 1973. He was appointed Queens Counsel in 1991 [now KC] and re-located to the Northern Territory in 1993. He has been a member of the NT Bar since then, retiring from active practice in 2016. He has been the Chair of the NT Parole Board since October 2021.

Rex was Director of Public Prosecutions in the NT from 1995-2006. Jointly with Patricia Anderson, on behalf of the NT Government, he conducted the inquiry which led to the presentation of the Little Children are Sacred Report [2007].

Jo DOWN *in absentia
Secretary
Northern Territory Parole Board

Jo arrived in the NT from Adelaide in 1997, and has called it home since then. Jo is a graduate of the University of Adelaide (BA, Psych) and CDU (LLB), and was admitted to practise in the NT in 2001 and WA in 2004.

She has worked as a Crown Prosecutor and as Practice Manager for the DPP in the NT, for the WA Police Royal Commission, AHPRA, and tutored and lectured at CDU (where she continues her engagement by mentoring final year law students).

Andrew BOE
Barrister
Carbolic Chambers/Black Chambers

Andrew Boe is a barrister who operates a national practice, primarily in criminal law matters, and has appeared in courts and tribunals in most states and territories of Australia and in the High Court. He has chambers in Brisbane and Sydney and is on a List in Melbourne. He is currently lead counsel for the Walker, Lane & Robertson families in the Inquest into the death of Kumanjayi Walker and has been appointed Co-Lead Counsel Assisting the Queensland Truth-telling and Healing Commission to commence on 1 July 2024. In 2013, he appeared in Munda v State of Western Australia which was heard with Bugmy v The Queen. He has written widely about criminal justice issues, including his book, The Truth Hurts, published by Hachette Australia in 2020. Andrew's session at CLANT in 2024 will be premised on an article he wrote for the Griffith Law Review: Australia: Drive it like you stole it.

Annmarie LUMSDEN *Director*Northern Territory Legal Aid Commission

Annmarie has been the Director of NT Legal Aid in the Northern Territory, Australia since December 2022. She holds a Bachelor of Arts and Law from the Australian National University and an Executive Masters in Public Administration from the Australian and New Zealand School of Government. She became a Law Society of NSW Accredited Specialist in Criminal Law in 1999. Annmarie has over 30 years post admission experience, mainly as an employee of legal aid commissions in the ACT and NSW, but also in private practice and government. Annmarie worked at Legal Aid NSW for over 20 years, holding leadership positions across the organisation. In 2022 Annmarie was conferred the Terry Keaney Award by a committee comprised of representatives from the NSW judiciary, The NSW Bar Association, the Law Society of NSW, ALS(NSW/ACT) and Legal Aid NSW for her dedication to the profession, excellence as a criminal defence lawyer and commitment to social justice.

Chrissy MCCONNEL
Deputy Coroner
Local Court of the Northern Territory

A born and bred Territorian, Chrissy studied Law at Charles Darwin University, intending to become an employment lawyer after a long career in Human Resources management. That idea promptly went out the window after discovering the exciting world of crime in her year as a Supreme Court Associate to the Hon. Justice Trevor Riley. Instead she embarked on a new career as a junior criminal lawyer at the Northern Territory Legal Aid Commission in 2009 where she remained for many years, moving through the ranks and eventually becoming the Managing Solicitor of Crime. In 2021 she was appointed as in house counsel for the Independent Commissioner against Corruption and from there returned to Legal Aid briefly, before joining Murray Chambers in Darwin as a Barrister. In June 2023, she was appointed as the Deputy Coroner for the Northern Territory.

A Dingo's Guide To Sanur

Ideas for your break day

Beautiful Sanur

Sanur is one of the oldest tourism regions in Bali and has been home to the CLANT conference since 1987. Unlike the Western coast of Southern Bali, Sanur has retained much of its "old school" charm and is a relaxed and family-oriented area with clean and uncrowded beaches fronting a stunning lagoon perfect for swimming.

Sanur is easy to navigate and very walkable, so we encourage you to get out and about and enjoy the local sights and tastes.

Orientation

Sanur Beach runs basically north-south, with the main road Jalan Danau Tamblingan (JDT) running parallel to the coastline. At the roundabout at its Southern end, JDT turns into Jalan Danau Poso (which tracks inland and then parallel to the Ngurah Rai bypass) and Jalan Cemara (which runs Southeast parallel to the coast, eventually becoming Jalan Mertasari). The Northern end of JDT is where you will find the Sindhu Beach area, which is the location of the famous Night Market (see map).

From the top end of JDT to the Roundabout is about 2.5km.

Getting Around

Post-pandemic Sanur is a slightly different place than many returning delegates will remember. The bemos, ubiquitous "blue bird" taxis and offers of "Transport? Transport?" are largely gone (though there are still many great private transport operators if you plan on using one driver for multiple trips during your stay).

Most drivers now drive for Grab (www.grab.com, download from your App store) which is the Southeast Asian version of Uber. It is cheap, reliable, predictable, and safe. Once you have downloaded the app, you can elect to pay your driver in cash, or link a credit card. Beware of international transaction fees if using your card. You can only link a credit card to your Grab account after you arrive in Indonesia.

Map

Cash & Banking

As a rough guide, $1 AUD equals 10,000 IDR (Indonesian Rupiah).

Most restaurants and bars will express their prices in "thousand rupiah" – so where a menu says "50" it means 50,000 IDR, which equates to $5$ AUD.

ATMs and money changers are slowly disappearing as Bali, like the rest of the world, transitions to a cashless economy.

You can still find ATMs in many Circle-K stores - expect fees and charges.

Aside from small tokos (shops) and warungs (local cafes) you should be able to use a credit or debit card as most places have "pay wave".

We recommend having some cash on hand, but if you're happy using a card for payment, you won't need much.

Eating & Drinking

You will find a wide variety of options in Sanur, from white linen tablecloth-style fine dining to barefoot on the beach (with Bintang in hand, of course). JDT is where you will find a lot of the action, with most options towards the "roundabout" end. Along the beach you will find some great beachside cocktail venues (the bars at the Hyatt and Maya resort are particularly swish), and clusters of restaurants, especially in the area directly south of the Hyatt. Continue further south towards Mertasari beach and the restaurants turn into charming local Warungs with obscenely cheap and delicious food, usually served by the owners.

Sanur is not known for its nightlife. It has much more of a chill vibe than Western Denpasar, though you can still find great bars and pubs (including a few pouring locally brewed beers). Things tend to settle down before midnight. Looking for a wild night out? Go to Kuta.

Looking for Insta-chic? Go to Seminyak for high-end venues

You should be fine to walk-in to most places but make a reservation if you want to guarantee a table at more high-end or popular spots. Most restaurants will have a WhatsApp or Facebook Messenger service for bookings, and many will have online-booking through their websites.

Supermarkets & Pharmacies

Small Circle-K convenience stores are everywhere along JDT, and you will be able to get basic supplies from there.

There are a number of well-stocked larger supermarkets along JDT, both directions from the Hyatt. Hardy's is approximately 800m north of the Hyatt along JDT and is a good place for bulk supplies. They also have a wine shop. Popular, which is a bit more upmarket, has two outlets on JDT – one about 700m south of the Hyatt (about 100m past the roundabout on Jalan Cemara), and one about 300m further north from Hardy's. There is an excellent bakery called Daily Baguette about 200m south of the Hyatt.

Most toiletries and pharmacy / medicinal supplies can be found in the supermarkets but if you need anything specific there is a large Guardian pharmacy with knowledgeable, helpful staff located right at the roundabout.
